COMMERCIAL.

PRIDAY, JULY 4, 1879. Business for the week has been mainly devoted to the making up and delivery of quarterly accounts; and we could wish that settlements were included in the category, but regret to observe that the credit system is demoralizing us to the extent that it does away with even the courtesy, in a number of houses, of receiving acsame into to be taken in hand at a convenient time for counts at the hands of deliverers, as boxes or baskets examination and, in many cases, -judging from the complaints we hear of accounts brought forward-for continnance. We will not deny there may be an excuse of convenience in the method, but it is tending to results in no way conductve to reputation in business matters.

During the week, the house of T. J. Mossman, doing business in this city and in Wailuku, Maul, has suspendad again, -as per legal notice in another column. This result, after years of toil and labor in the well known method of the above house in doing business is certainly no surprise to the community, and accounts in a measure the above that we trust will not be lost sight of by our business community

In shipping we note continued activity, both foreign some time to come, judging from our list of vessels expected from foreign ports.

"THE FOREIGN MAIL," is the monthly issue of the Philadelphia Grocer, published by Ward and Lipmann, Philadelphia. It is well printed and edited, and contains a large amount of valuable information on matters of trade and commerce, besides interesting accounts of new inventions. In the June number, it thus sensibly speaks of the suggestion recently made in a Honolula paper

"The Sandwich Islands want more laborers on their sugar plantations and think that southern | their ignorance as to proper care, it has proved negroes would suit best for the work, especially since they might bring with them an equal quantity of women. The present population of Hawa'i shows almost three men to every woman on the Island, and the importation of Chinese would only make the proportions worse.

" We are inclined to think that the importation of negroes would not prove satisfactory in many ways. Only the most ignorant part of our colored over, there never has been an emigration of equal numbers of the sexes since the day of Adam and Eve left home. Men go where women will not, and the colored woman is no exception to her sex. Her home-ties of church, family and friends are stronger than the man's are, and her argument of women's infirmities is just as eloquent as that of her white sisters. Emigrants at the best are not usually a very promising set in this age. When religion impelled men to leave their homes the cases were different, and even when, in still earlier days, conquests lead men into new countries the proportion of worthless characters was far smaller. To-day the unruly sons and daughters; the sons and husbands who are tired of aiding in the support of those who are naturally dependant upon them; the wild young men who go away to sunder themselves from a temptation which exists everywhere: the adventurers who hope to find a fortune which they are not willing to earn; and lastly, those who fly from a modern justice that knows no such thing as persecution. All these go to make up the number, and when we look over the lists to find those who with reasonable calculation have come with their families to better their condition in a new country, but half the number is left. The German race emigrate with more reason than any others, the negro with the least. "Just at present the movement of colored people from the South to Kansas seems to show that they could be easily induced to leave this country altogether, but it really proves the contrary. the negro wants to move, the United States is big enough to tempt him in a dozen directions, and his first idea will always be that the West is a paradise. It is said that the agents of the Western railroads sent chromos among the negroes showing how comfortably they could be settled in the Farwest. On the other hand, after our friends in the Saudwich Islands had chartered a vessel and filled the wharf with the emigrants, it would be an easy matter to upset all their calculations by distributing a few slightly exaggerated colored pictures of natives of Hawail.

OLLARS & YEAR. Honolulu, Jan. 18th. 1879. Publisher and Proprie

SATURDAY, JULY 5. THEIR MAJESTIES the King and Queen and suite returned from the trip to the leeward islands on Thursday morning, in good health and having enjoyed a very pleasant excursion. The party landed on the rocky islet of Kanla, from which they brought spoils of the feathers

YESTERDAY, being the anniversary of the Declaration of the Independence of the United States, Gen. J. M. Among the callers we noticed, their Excellencies the Ministers of the for the little sympathy that is expressed for the losers | Interior and Finance and the Attorney General; by this bankruptcy. There are lessons to be learned by Mr. Justice Judd of the Supreme Court; the King's Chamberlain; the Commissioners of Great Britain and France; the Consular Corps and coastwise, with a fair prospect of its continuance for generally; and quite a number of American citizens.

VOLUME XXIV.

With the present issue the Pacific Commer-CIAL ADVERTISER enters upon its twenty-fourth volume. It will continue to be our aim in the future, as it has been in the past, to make this journal a live one, independent of parties or cliques, and outspoken against the wrong or in defense of the right. That our efforts in this direction have been appreciated by the public of these Islands, is evidenced by the generous patronage we have enjoyed, for which we hereby return our hearty thanks. We may be pardoned perhaps on this occasion of our annual personal chat with patrons, for thus saying a word on the subject of our vocation. Journalism, like any other business, has its temptations and perils, and again, these are like those of any other business. A newspaper is a censor, and it is ever under censorship. The lawyer has no such perils to encounter as has the journalist. He can bully bench and bar and go free: He can defend a murderer or forger with impunity. He can bring a witness to grief without being thrashed for it. He can, in fact, defy public opinion. Not so the journalist. He must be of all men, most circumspect - especially June 28- Am batne Catherine Sudden, Ingails, for Port in a small community. With the most wearing, treadmill work, the worst paid vocation in life is that of making a newspaper. But the journalist to subscribe or to renew subscriptions, the terms being five dollars in advance; of which fact they will please take due notice and act accordingly.

THE RECENT importations of Chinese have not, so far, had much effect upon the market for labor on sugar plantations, for the reason, undoubtedly, as stated in our last, that the men were previously engaged by their own countrymen engaged in the cultivation of rice. Some few have engaged on sugar estates, at the rate of twelve dollars per month for two years with board and lodging, and one hundred and twenty dollars advance; and we have heard of the rare instance of eighteen dollars per month having been paid, with board and lodging with sixty dollars advance, under a contract for one year. The agricultural business must be good that can stand the payment of such a high rate of wages as this. But the present prospect is that wages for plantation hands must fall to a reasonable figure before long, for it is reported, from Chinese sources, that the steamer Cassandra, which sailed for China on the return voyage on Tuesday last, is to return immediately with five hundred passengers (not coolies, Mr. Governor Hennessy) and that a regular line of steamers will hereafter be employed in the business. When we get these "factors in the scale of the progress and prosperity of the Kingdom"vide the Gazette-coming in upon us at the rate of five hundred a month, or six thousand a year, something must tumble ere long,-and it will not be laborer's wages only that will fall before the

DESPITE the care and precautions of the Board of Health, it appears that the measles, which disease was introduced here from California some two months ago, is beginning to spread in this city, there being some seven or eight cases at present known. There may be others that are concealed from the authorities, for the more ignorant among the natives would be likely to say nothing about it, having a dislike to being kept under constraint, and generally a disinclination to be treated by a foreign physician. It is for this reason that it is highly important to confine the disease to Honolulu, if possible. We do not desire to unnecessarily create alarm; but we know for a certainty that if the measles should spread among the native population in the remote districts of the Islands, the result will likely be about bringing the Southern freedman to these a serious mortality. In the United States and Europe, it is true, measles is not considered as a dangerous disease; but with the Hawaiians, in far otherwise. In the years 1848-9, the measles carried off not far from 10,000 of the inhabitants of these Islands, among others, the high chief Leleiohoku. But with a greater degree of intelligence among the people, the vigilance of the Board of Health through its agents, and the presence of government physicians in each district. we may reasonably hope that we shall escape a population is ever willing to leave the country. petition of the scourge of thirty years ago. We Our Liberian experiments prove this. And more- are glad to learn that the Board of Health have prepared, in the native language, a series of printed instructions for the made of treatment of patients attacked with the measles, calculated to afford all necessary directions, in the absence of a physician. These instructions will be scattered broad-cast over the Islands. While on this subject, we beg to remind the authorities, that, with the present frequent communication between these Islands and San Francisco, we are in constant danger of importing a contagious disease that is far more to be feared than the measles-we mean the small-pox. It is well known that this disease is always present in San Francisco, for large cities are said never to be entirely free from it. And it flourishes most among the lower classes of society, who pay little attention to cleanliness or sanitary precautions. The Chinese, who come here from their underground hives of San Francisco, are the likely ones to bring us small-pox, and they should therefore be closely observed before being permitted to land here. And it must be remembered that there are also ports of entry for foreign shipping on Maui and Hawaii, at which, no less than at Honolulu, great vigilance should be exercised in this regard. We have heard the statement made, we have reason to believe it is true, that a large proportion of the children born on these Islands during the past ten years, have not been vaccinated. Is it not high time that this precaution against the small-pox was taken? And it should be done universally and "by authority," by careful and strict physicians, in order to guard against the evil results that have unquestionably followed the practice in former years.

This district, lying on the windward side of Hawaii, has a very rich, deep soil, the accumulated wash of ages from the slopes of Maunakea, and contains more arable land than any one other disabsence of any harbor for shipping and the poor facilities afforded for even a boat landing. Whenever the time shall arrive that the capital is available to build a railroad through Hamakus, connecting its fertile slopes and bills with either the port of Kawaihae or Hilo, or both-then indeed will the mmense natural resources of that portion of Haguine anticipations of to-day. But until we can get the railroad, we must do the next best thing, and devise some means whereby to facilitate access to the plantations by sea. Mr. C. V. Housman, C. E., has spent come months in Hamakua, engaged in take pleasure in giving place to the following inter-

HAMARUA, HAWAII, June 26th, 1879. To the Editor of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser. DEAR SIR: From the frequent enquires that have been made of me in respect to the Hamakua coast of Hawaii, and from the public interest now felt in this district, I venture to offer my opinion as five days a journey that has usually occupied a to what to me appears the solution to the question of | fortnight. a Good Landing.

Having been now almost a constant resident in the Hamakua district, since February last year, I have been able to make notes of the various features as they have appeared. I have also made a good outline of the coast, with soundings extending some 2500 feet from shore. The coast from Waipio to Laupahoehoe, is one series of high bluffs, ranging from 50 to 280 feet in height, intersected at various distances by gulches of irregular depths running from the mountains, some to the water's edge, and others terminating half-way up the bluff. The bottom of the sea from the bluff, and extending out some 150 yards, is covered with a black lava rock going off perpendicular some 50 to 60 feet in places, and lying on a slope of 1 in 5, and from which I should judge, that at an early period, the face of the whole coast had been convulsed, and thrown into the sea by a volcanic earthquake. Outside of this, I find a narrow strip of sand lying generally in 20 to 30 fathoms of water, (it cannot be called a bar) it is generally flat, with sharp pointed coral rocks protruding through in places. This is the anchoring place for our schooners, and on the outside of this run a long line of pyramidical rocks, thence deep water.

With the foregoing data of the sea bed and it will readily be seen, that when there has been a violent storm to the north or east of us, the heavy swell rolling from that direction with the full force of the Pacific behind it, that when entering comparatively shallow water, this riffle-like bottom, cannot but help to increase its fury, and make it dash and leap wildly against our shore. To erect wharves or jetties, would be folly, and we must therefore try to avoid the waves, rather than try to resist them.

I therefore consider with the foregoing facts before me, that the most feasible plan, and the most advantageous to the district for present use, (till the railway is built to Kawaihae) would be to construct a dock in one of the gulches, and build out from it into the sea across its entrance, two sea walls or breakwaters, one six hundred feet long at right angles to the trade wind, and another three hundred feet long at an angle of 70° to the first, and at right angles to the northerly swell, and between these two, would be the entrance to the dock. The dock itself should be 100 feet long by 50 feet wide, and capable of taking vessels drawing 10 feet of water. There would be a steam tug in connection with the dock, and on a schooner approaching, she would go to her assistance and tow her in. With this place we could then discharge and load schooners with the heaviest machinery, and give them the same dispatch as at Honolulu. For passengers this lock would be equally beneficial. At night two ights could be put upon the entrance, and the boat would soon row into smooth water, and land passengers and freight with as much ease as at the

Should this scheme seem too expensive or large to be undertaken at present, we have another way which would be more beneficial than the present system, by placing at each landing large lighters capable of olding say 50 to 100 tons. Then in bad weather at the landing, the conveyances can discharge into her, and the plantation receive it when a suitable day offers to land. By this, the schooners would meet with comparatively no detention.

In shipping sugars, this hulk or lighter can be turned into a store-house, and by having a small mast and lug sail go with a fair wind to Mahukona and there transfer to the steamer. On the return voyage the steamer can tow the lighter back; but should this system be adopted by all, it will pay ship owners to keep a tug constantly to attend on But as an investment, the dock might be made a paying concern by charging towage storage, on freight loaded or shipped. Then with a good cartroad through the district, Hamakua would be the ne plus ultra of the Hawaiian Kingdom. I am Dear Sir,

Your Obedient Servant, C. VERNON HOUSMAN, Civil Engineer.

A TRIP TO THE VOLCANO.-A party of gentlemen recently made a visit to the Volcano of Kilauca from Honolulu, which deserves to be put on record, from the fact that it was the quickest visit and return ever made to that great natural wonder of the Pacific. The party, which consisted of the Minister trict in the Islands-but its great drawback is the of the Interior, Col. J. G. Fair of Nevada, Mr. Jas. Dye of California, and others, left this city on the evening of Tuesday, June 24, on the steamer Likelike, and arrived at Hilo (touching at intermediate ports) at 8 o'clock on the merning of the 26th. By 7 o'clock on the same evening they had arrived on horseback at the Volcano Mouse, where they spent the night. They were very fortunate in finding waii come to light, and astonish even the most san- | Madame Pele in an unusual condition of activity. Instead of one or two lakes of fire, the whole immense pit was one boiling, seething mass of liquid lava, constantly in motion and fiery ebullition. The sight after nightfall, from the brink of the crater,- s said to have been indescribably grand. After spendsurveying the route of the prospective railroad, and | ing the night in the comfortable Volcano House, in having devoted his own time and means to a the morning the party made the venturesome that thorough survey of the coast of that district, we customary descent into the crater, and walked over the ledge as near as one might care to approach the immediate presence of the fiery goddess. Having thus seen the Hawaiian elephant in all its wonderful proportions, the tourists returned to the terra firma of the surface, and descending the mountain to the landing at Keauhou, met the steamer there on the evening of the 27th, and arrived at Honolulu at 2.80 on the morning of the 29th, extremely well pleased with their trip-having accomplished in less than
